We use the Colab to write this final project, and the language is python.

If you want to execute. Just need to press the execute all.

If you could not use the Colab to open the file, you would need to have the python executive environment.

You can ignore the SINR part of our code, since we originally thought it's valid. But after proposal, we think that part won't be considered in our final report. As a result, you can ignore the part and not running it.

Since it's easy to run the code, the readme is easy too.
